Pastor Tachala Hood is an anointed ministry figure, believed to be a divine gift appointed by God for this specific time. Her exceptional prayer mantle yields abundant fruit both within and beyond North Carolina. Revered for her leadership in various spheres - be it at home, in the marketplace, or within the Church - Pastor Hood's profound worship-filled heart serves as a conduit for God's healing and solace to those in need of encouragement and liberation.

Her ministry, meticulously orchestrated by God, is dedicated to reaching out to the broken-hearted and emotionally wounded. The flow of divine anointing upon Pastor Hood is a result of the refining and molding of her own life experiences, bearing the fruits of prophecy, intercession, and worship for the glorification of God. Partnering with her husband, Bishop Robert D. Hood, the Presiding Prelate of the Goldsboro-Raleigh District Assembly, she serves in multiple roles, including leading the Essential Woman Women's Ministry and the Weep for the City prayer ministry.

On a broader scale, she envisions and orchestrates the eastern North Carolina National Day of Prayer Regional Gathering, bringing together regional leaders, clergy, and lay members in collective prayer. She firmly believes that through unified obedience, the glory of God will spark revival and spiritual awakening in the region, surpassing all expectations.

Pastor Tachala Hood has been entrusted with the ministry of Like Morning Dew for nearly thirteen years. Through this para-ministry, she has organized numerous regional gatherings and workshops focusing on prayer, spiritual gifts, leadership, worship, and evangelism. In addition to her ministry work, Pastor Hood is also active in the marketplace, where she leads a team of digital transformation experts at one of the top global technology companies.

Despite her dedication to ministry and fulfilling her divine calling, Pastor Hood treasures her family above all else. She and her husband share a loving bond and are blessed with nine children, twelve grandchildren, and a devoted god-daughter. Pastor Hood considers it a privilege to raise and guide her family, instilling in them the values and teachings that will lead them to a life devoted to the Kingdom of God.
